Building Resilient Societies as the Basic Principle

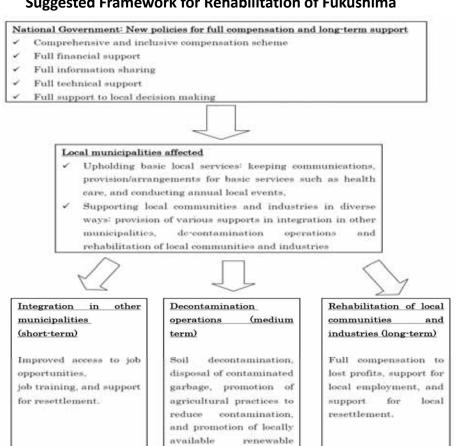

Enabling conditions by the National Government

-Decentralization of authorities -- Creation of specialized local rehabilitation areas -Realization of cross-sectoral approaches -- Single designated national agency

-Provision of funds -- Funds to be provided without strings

-Facilitation of multi-stakeholders and horizontal collaboration -- Facilitation rather than implementation Multi-stakeholder/ Multi-stakeholder/ Horizontal collaboration Horizontal collaboration Neighboring Local Decision Making municipalities (Full consultation with local stakeholders) Immediate provision Provision of foods, of labor and other Local municipalities affected temporary shelters. services, according and other services to local needs Assistance to help, provide public services Communities Local industry and Private Companies Local CSOs Distant Municipalities infrastructure - Fishery -Social capital Provision of (water health - Forestry -Local culture expertise and special Assistance to help Education, etc.) - Tourism -Local lifestyle services as a part of provide public services their CSR activities such as water supply Basic approaches Local/traditional knowledge, smart use of local human as well as natural resources, protection of local communities/culture Cross-sectoral rehabilitation Promotion of locally available Disaster reduction technology Local job opportunities Forest management - Fishery Use of local knowledge in the renewable energy resources Involvement of affected people in Agriculture - Bioenergy design of coastal protection reconstruction/ rehabilitation works Garbage disposal integrated into coastal areas protection

Suggested Framework for Rehabilitation of Fukushima energy, as well as maximum involvement